

Workday Education and Training

Workday Education and Training helps customers and Workday ecosystem members deploy and best use their Workday applications. Our training ranges from strategic topics, such as learning to deploy Workday at a company site, to specific information about new features in the latest Workday release. We offer a variety of learning delivery options from independent, self-paced offerings to high-end, hands-on activities in the Workday tenant. We also offer customer accreditations and partner certifications. Our goal is to help teams flourish by providing needed training that's helpful and within budget.

Training for Multiple Roles

We recognize that people vary in their ability to comprehend information, and for that reason we strive to accommodate all learning styles. We also recognize that people are busy and that fitting a training into a full schedule can be challenging. That's why Workday provides several options. We have a solid understanding of the most effective delivery type for each audience. For those individuals and companies that want to be more self-sufficient, Workday Education provides continuous learning options.

Team-Based Training

If you would like to train an entire team so that everyone learns the same content at the same time, we can help with that, too. We've seen that when multiple people from an organization sign up for the same training, it encourages members to collaborate and problem-solve in real time.

Company-Based Training

By using our online training resources, your Training Coordinator will be able to choose courses and tracks based specifically on your company's needs. Our training services can help you move from where you are today in the adoption of Workday products and features to where you would like to be tomorrow.

Extraordinary Classrooms

At Workday, customer satisfaction is always at the heart of what we do. For example, the Workday Education training unit has an 18-month expiration period, while the industry standard is 12 months. Our volume discounts are based on the total volume purchased in the past 12 months. The industry-standard volume discount typically only applies to the current purchase.

Unparalleled Training Experience

We invest in our training facilities so that our students have a great learning environment. We have large plasma screens, easy-to-read whiteboards, high-quality acoustics and lighting—all designed to provide the best training experience available.
